(1814-1884) ENGERTH, William, Baron
Austrian engineer. Born in PLESS, Prussian Silesia. He invented the "Engerth system" for freight locomotives which, since its introduction on the Samsoning Railroad has found wide adoption on the Continent. He also invented, devised, and built the river gate near NISSDORF which prevents the entrance of ice into the Danube Canal at Vienna, thus preventing the resultant annual inundations.
